This paragraph contains a footnote<sup>[1]</sup>.

Table 1. A table

A Cell	A Cell <sup>[a]</sup>	A Cell
A Cell <sup>[b]</sup>	A Cell	A Cell
A Cell	A Cell	A Cell <sup>[c]</sup>
[a] First footnote.
[b] Second footnote.
[c]
100 Any Street East Yahoo, XX

This is a longer paragraph. It will eventually contain a footnote, but first it has enough text to make the footnote appear in the middle of the paragraph. This is so we can test the effect of changing the line-height-shift-adjustment property. This paragraph contains a footnote<sup>[2]</sup> (see, I said it would). Now it has more text to make the footnote appear in the middle of the paragraph. Now it has more text to make the footnote appear in the middle of the paragraph.
